This guide has been prepared according to the author-date system of the 16th edition of the Chicago Manual of Style (CMOS). This is the style, system, and edition specified by the American Anthropological Association. It is appropriate for most students writing in the discipline of anthropology. If you are in doubt as to whether it is the appropriate style for your research paper, please consult your instructor.

In the author-date system of CMOS, a two-part structure is used to credit the sources and writers that have contributed to a composition. The system consists of in-text citations and an end of text list of reference entries. If you are unfamiliar with these, read the brief overview. If you are comfortable with these concepts, use the table of contents to find examples of the relevant reference type.

NOTE: Dr. Ayers-Darling’s student may ONLY USE SCHOLARLY SOURCES. Some source types listed may not be appropriate. If in doubt, ask your instructor.

PAPER FORMATTING

COVER PAGE

- CMOS calls for a cover page or title page that makes use of the same font as the main text.
- Cover pages frequently make use of title case capitalization and centered, double spaced text placed about one third of the way down the page
  - One third is approximately six lines in a Times New Roman, 12pt double-spaced document.
- Include all information your instructor requests, such as your name, the title of the course, date, and project title.

FORMATTING THE TEXT

- FONT: The CMOS does not designate a preferred font. Most instructors accept Times New Roman.
- FONT SIZE: CMOS does not specify a font size. Most instructor expect a font no larger than 12 point.
- LINE SPACING: CMOS suggests double spacing. Do not use extra spaces between paragraphs.
  - Block quotations are single spaced with a space before and after.
- MARGINS: CMOS suggests 1-inch margins.
- ALIGNMENT: Text should be ALIGNED to the left and left ragged on the right.
- INDENTATION: Indent paragraphs one half inch (5 spaces). For ease, use the tab key.
  - Block quotations are indented half an inch.

- Although the CMOS does not provide a single location for page numbers, they are frequently placed in the upper right header, a half inch from the top of the page. Alternatively, page numbers are sometimes seen in the center of the footer, a half inch from the bottom center of the page.
- Check your assignment for instructor specification.

SUBHEADINGS

- CMOS supports the use of subheadings to help the reader navigate the work.
- Multiple levels of subheadings can be used if the complexity of the text warrants it.
- Subheadings (Introduction, Discussion) are set on a new line, flush left or centered.
- First level subheadings are distinguished from the body of the text by typeface (e.g. bold, italics) and given in title case capitalization.

REFERENCE PAGE

- The reference page is typically the last page of a student paper.
- The reference page is frequently titled References, but other titles (Works Cited, Bibliography) are sometimes used. Check your assignment guidelines or ask your instructor for the preferred title.
- Reference entries are organized alphabetically and make use of a half inch hanging indent.
- Entries are single spaced with a space between each entry.

IN-TEXT CITATIONS

In-text citations provide information that points or keys to a list of alphabetized sources at the end of the text. In-text citations include the first two elements of the reference list entry (author + date). This enables any reader with a knowledge of the alphabet to find the relevant entry quickly.

In CMOS’s author-date system, in-text citations frequently take the form of parenthetical citations.

PARENTHETICAL CITATIONS consist of source information placed in a set of parentheses ( ).

- Parenthetical citations generally appear at the end of the sentence that contains the source information and are used for summaries, paraphrases, and quotes.
- They include the author(s)’ last name(s), year of publication, and, when available, the page number(s) where the source information can be found.
- Whenever possible, include page numbers for quotations or extensive paraphrases, using an en dash for page ranges.
- In CMOS, the parenthetical citation is formatted as follows:
  - (Author(s) YEAR, #).

  →  (Jones and Brunello 1999, 117-118).

- Note that there is no punctuation between the author(s) and year of publication.

EXAMPLE

The introduction to the issue promises an examination of American gun violence and previews the articles’ themes, including “the cultivation of fear—and of particular fears about particular groups of people,” and how firearms marketers capitalizes on those fears (Han and Antrosio 2018).

SIGNAL PHRASES are short phrases used to signal or introduce source material.

- Signal phrases use the name of the author or source and a verb in the present tense. See the signal phrase guide for more information.

  - | The American Anthropological Association notes ... | Rosaldo describes...

- Signal phrases are generally used in conjunction with parenthetical citations.

- If the author’s name is used in a signal phrase, it is not repeated in the parenthetical citation.

EXAMPLE

Harvey implies that the Anishinaabe animistic world view intuits current theories on the consciousness of matter (2017, 482).

REFERENCES

In the author-date system, full reference information is given in the form of end-of-text reference entries. In CMOS author-date, a period is placed after each element of the entry.

Reference entry formatting depends on entry type. Entries generally begin with:

1. Author(s) of the source.
2. Year of publication.
3. Title of work.

   - Titles of short works are given in title case and placed in “quotation marks.”
   - Titles of long works are given in title case and italicized.
AUTHOR TYPES

SINGLE AUTHOR
- The name is given last name, first name. | ref: Mead, Margaret. | in-text: (Mead 1935, 34).

TWO TO THREE AUTHORS
- The first name is inverted (Last name, First name). Subsequent names are given first name last name and names are separated by commas. The word and is given before the final name.

FOUR OR MORE AUTHORS
- Reference entries for four or more authors follow the pattern above.
- In-text citations for four or more authors include only the first author’s last name and the Latin phrase et al. meaning and others. | in-text: (Freeman et al. 1965, 67-69).
- For more than ten authors, list the first seven followed by et al.

ORGANIZATION AS AUTHOR
- When a source is authored by an organization, put the organization’s name in the author’s place in the reference entry and in-text citation.
- If you use an abbreviation of the organization’s name in the in-text citations, the reference entry must begin with the abbreviation.

EXAMPLE

In-text: The organization’s ethical guidelines include a commitment to respecting the “dignity, integrity, and worth” of the communities they study (SfAA, n.d.).

UNKNOWN AUTHOR
- When the author of a work is unknown, start the reference entry with the title followed by the year.
- In the absence of an author, in-text citations use the title or a shortened version of the title.

EXAMPLE

In-text: (“American Found Dead” 2012).

MULTIPLE SOURCES BY ONE AUTHOR
- When using more than one work by the same author, use three em dash ——— (Alt + Ctrl + Num-) in place of the name after the first reference list entry.

NO DATE
- When no publication date is available for a print source, use n.d. for no date in both the reference entry and in-text citation. It is preceded by a comma in in-text citations. (Evanston, n.d., 13).
- When no publication date is available for a webpage, use the access date. See pages 7 and 8.

E-BOOK

For online books, finish the reference entry with the relevant URL, DOI, or name of the database. For other types of e-books, name the format (e.g. Kobo, Kindle, Nook). If no page numbers are given, the CMOS indicates that writers may use section or chapter titles in in-text citations.

JOURNAL ARTICLE

Include the article page range in the reference list. Cite specific pages in the in-text citation. If the article was found online, include a digital object identifier (DOI). If no DOI is available, include a stable URL. This is preferred to the URL that appears in the address bar and in auto-formatted entries.

News or Magazine Article – Print and Online

- News and magazine sources are, in most cases, not considered scholarly sources. If you are unsure if a source fulfills assignment criteria, please check with your instructor.
- News and magazine reference entries supply the year of publication after the author. They give the month and date of publication after the periodical name.
- Page numbers are not included in reference entries but, if available, are used in in-text citations.
- Online sources should include the source’s URL or database name.

Website Content

- Web content is often unsuitable for scholarly writing. Always check with your instructor to ensure such sources meet assignment criteria.
- CMOS specifies that website content is generally cited in the running text. See page 8 for examples.
- If a more formal end of text reference entry is preferred, include:

Author’s Last Name, First Name. Publication year. “Title of Web Page.” Publishing Organization or Name of Website. Month, Day Year of publication if available. URL.

- As shown in the template above, most website titles are not italicized.
- Blog titles and titles of online works corresponding to print publications or media establishments are italicized. E.g. Google Maps, Harvard University, Anthro{dendum} (blog), CNN, Scientific American.
  - Blog titles that do not include the word blog are followed by (blog).
- If no publication date is listed, include the date of access or modification. See examples.
- When no author is given, the organization is moved to the author’s place and is not repeated.
RUNNING TEXT CITATION

- “In an article published on February 5, 2019 on Stanford University’s news blog, Alex Shashkevich contends that “the heart of humanity’s history is a dependency on objects and things.”
- In a 2018 TED talk called “Why the ‘Wrong Side of the Tracks’ is Usually the East Side,” anthropologist Stephen DeBerry argues that city designs create and reinforce disparity and that evidence of this can be seen in east-sides that are, via wind patterns, subject to greater pollution.

ONLINE VIDEO

The format of online video reference entries depends on the information available. Include details about the original published source (if applicable) and details about the source type, length, and URL. Here are two of many possible reference entry formats.

Video Creator Last Name, First Name. Original Release Year. Video Title. Original Production Company. From Provider of Online Video. Source Type, Running Time. URL.

Author Last Name, First Name. Year Filmed. "Video Clip Title." Source Type, Running Time. Posted by Name of Person/Organization, Date Posted. URL.
